Dear Mr. Cruz,

I am delighted that you will be teaching at The University of Texas School of Law during the Spring Semester, 2005. Your schedule and other pertinent information are listed below.

COURSE	MEETING DAY(S)	TIME	ROOM	EXAM DATE	ENROLLMENT/ MAXIMUM
Sem: Supreme Court Litigation	T	3:30-5:20	JON 5.204	none	13/13

Please be aware that the students must be informed in writing during the first four days of the semester, January 18-21, how they will be evaluated (exam, paper, take home exam, floating exam, etc.) This method cannot be changed afterwards. Moreover, all students must take the exam, if there is one, on the regularly scheduled exam date. Any exceptions, postponements, must be approved by me. Early exams are not permitted. If you would like a copy of our current catalog which explains in more detail our rules and policies, please let me know.

Please be aware that the current registration enrollment figure is subject to change, but it will not exceed your requested limit or the room seating capacity. There are usually not many changes after the first week of classes. We have already concluded the fall adds/drops, but there will be additional ones in January immediately prior to the start of the semester. The above enrollment number reflects the fall adds/drops. If your enrollment is low, it may be because your course was added late. More students will probably add your class during the January adds/drops. Even though you are currently assigned the room listed above, there may be room changes later. A schedule with the latest room assignments will be placed in your law school mailbox immediately prior to the first day of classes.

Enclosed are a calendar and schedule for your information. Please note that the first day of classes is Tuesday, January 18, and the last day is Monday, May 2. The holidays next spring are Spring Break, March 14-18. I did not mention Martin Luther King Day as a holiday, since classes begin the day after, but the University will be closed that day.

Three small offices in the Library are made available for use by our adjunct faculty. They are 6.224A, 6.224B, and 6.224C. Your faculty assistant will be assigned to you by Colleen Kieke (ckieke@mail.law.utexas.edu). Materials to be copied should be sent to your faculty assistant. The Law School is required to comply with copyright laws; therefore all materials to be copied must be checked for copyright permission prior to being sent for duplication. First day assignments to be posted should also be sent to your faculty assistant. I hope that you will find this arrangement satisfactory.

We look forward to your being part of our faculty this fall. If you have any questions about your schedule, please do not hesitate to contact me at 512-232-1317.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

Susana I. Alemán

Re: Ted Cruz Reference

Dear Dean Powers:

I understand that Ted Cruz has applied to be a member of the adjunct faculty at the University of Texas Law School, and would likely teach a class on Supreme Court litigation.

I write to offer my recommendation for Ted. As you are no doubt aware, Ted will bring to the law school a combination of academic success (at Harvard) and practical experience both at the state and federal level. In addition, he has seen Supreme Court litigation from both sides of the marble halls—as a law clerk to Chief Justice Rehnquist and as the Solicitor General for the State of Texas. His clerkship with Circuit Judge J. Michael Luttig on the Fourth Circuit (where he was my co-clerk) was also a Supreme Court practicum of sorts; Judge Luttig had clerked for Chief Justice Warren Burger, and he had close relationships with a number of the current sitting Justices.

I have no doubt that Ted will combine these experiences into a highly educational course offering. Moreover, his outgoing personality will, I think, be quite well-received by students. Congratulations on considering such a well-qualified candidate for your adjunct faculty.

Sincerely,

John C. Eastman
Professor of Law

RE: Ted Cruz

Dear Dean Powers:

I understand that my friend and former colleague, Ted Cruz, is being considered for an appointment to the adjunct faculty of the School of Law. I am writing to offer my unreserved and enthusiastic support for Ted's application. In my judgment, Ted would enrich the School and the experiences of its students.

I have known Ted since the Summer of 1996, when he and I started a judicial clerkship together. We became, and have remained, close friends. I am quite familiar with his work as a law clerk, a policy advisor, a practicing lawyer, and a public servant. He and I have worked together on several projects. In light of these experiences, I am pleased to endorse his application, and to recommend him to you.

Please feel free to contact me, at 574.631.6981, if you have any questions about Ted or about this letter.

Very respectfully yours,

Richard W. Garnett
Associate Professor of Law

Dear Dean Powers:

I understand that Ted Cruz has applied to teach a course as an adjunct professor at the University of Texas. I write in support of his application. I have known Ted, both personally and professionally, for eight years. Based upon this longstanding relationship, I can confidently say that Ted will make an excellent law teacher.

I first met Ted when he served as a law clerk for Chief Justice William Rehnquist with my husband, Rick. We became close friends, as co-clerks often do. In the years since, I've come to learn that Ted is more than just smart and extremely knowledgeable about the law---most people with his credentials fit that description, and he is no exception. But, more importantly, I've come to admire Ted as a person of the highest moral character. Your students would be lucky to have him as a teacher.

If you have any additional questions about Ted, please let me know.

Best Wishes, Nicole Garnett

The Texas Public Information Act, with a few exceptions, gives you the right to be informed about the information that The University of Texas at Austin collects about you. It also gives you the right to request a copy of that information, and to have The University correct any of that information that is wrong. You may request to receive and review any of that information, or request corrections to it, by contacting the University's Public Information Officer, Office of Financial Affairs, PO Box 8179, Austin, Texas, 78713 (email: cfo@www.utexas.edu).

Section 411.083, 411.085, and 411.094(d), Government Code. Unauthorized obtaining, use or disclosure of criminal history record information. Any such pages have been withheld from the assembled documents prior to inspection and/or release irregardless of the findings.

As an institute of higher education, the University is entitled to obtain criminal history information as it relates to job applicants seeking employment in a security-sensitive position. Sections 411.083, 411.085 and 411.094 of the Texas Government Code, govern dissemination of background check information maintained by the University.

Under the noted provisions, the University receives criminal history information from the Texas Department of Public Safety ("Texas DPS") for specific purposes and cannot, by law, re-disclose or use that information for anything other than the purpose for which it was originally obtained, i.e., for University background checks. Further, under §411.094(e), the University is required to destroy all criminal history information obtained from the Texas DPS "as soon as practicable" once the person is (1) employed, (2) satisfies his/her probationary employment term, or, 3) if the individual is not hired for the security-sensitive position.

Given the above, the University is prohibited from releasing criminal history information to anyone, even to the person that is the subject of the background check, except by court order. Please note, however, that the person that is the subject of the background check can obtain their own criminal background information by going to the source agency, the Texas DPS, directly.
